The Art of Not Being Governed does not come out of a clear blue sky but represents an extension and adaptation of many ideas with which Scott has worked over the years. Many people first gained some familiarity with the theory underlying this new work through the seminars and keynote lectures Scott gave at intervals over an extended period at elite centres of learning worldwide, often under the rubric 'Why Civilizations Can't Climb Hills'.

Herold Wiens and Sir James George Scott ("Shway Yoe") figure prominently in this chapter (pp. 137 ff.). And The Art of Not Being Governed offers a potential corollary to Charles Tilly's comments about state formation: "states make wars and wars make states" becomes "states makes wars and wars – massively – make migrants" (p. 146). Further pursuing the comparative aspects of displacement and refuge, Scott discusses the "state-resistant space" of the Pegu Yoma in Burma as ...

James C. Scott. James Scott, recognized worldwide as an eminent authority in Southeast Asian, peasant, and agrarian studies, tells the story of the peoples of Zomia and their unlikely odyssey in search of self-determination. He redefines our views on Asian politics, history, demographics, and even our fundamental ideas about what constitutes civilization, and challenges us with a radically different approach to history that presents events from the perspective of stateless peoples and ...
